1 MS. HANN: I think this one can be very short, 2 Your Honor. Part 4, expanded database discovery. We 3 are very close to an agreement. I think Mr. Cowan will 4 agree. The sort of issue that we are waiting on is we 5 want them to give us some examples of the 6 database-damages-related documents they would like. 7 They say they need to see our amended initial 8 disclosures before they can comfortably do that. We 9 will be amending our disclosures on or by October 9th. 10 And then we will look forward to their response as to 11 what documents they need. 12 In the meantime Oracle intends to comply with 13 the deadlines and obligations in our draft agreement as 14 though it were final. 15 I think that's all there is to update the 16 Court on. 17 MR. COWAN: I think that's right, Your Honor. 18 There were some deadlines -- I don't know exactly which 19 ones she's referring to. There were -- was a specific 20 September 30th deadline in our draft agreement that has 21 to do with exchange of interrogatories that we want 22 updated for the fourth amended. The parties have agreed 23 to that. I don't want to -- I don't have the agreement 24 in front of me, so I don't want to commit to doing 25 anything on deadlines in a draft agreement besides	1 again because of witness or counsel availability. There 2 may be ones-ies or twos-ies that bleed over a little 3 bit. If Counsel agree in advance of that deadline, that 4 may happen. 5 But you have the whole -- from our perspective 6 Defendants have this huge machinery in place that has 7 been processing this data -- these 8 to 9 million pages 8 of data and all the terabytes of data files we've talked 9 about. At some point we have to dismantle that 10 machinery. There are literally dozens of contract 11 lawyers still sitting in Houston looking at documents 12 every day. When that comes -- 13 THE COURT: [inaudible] 14 MR. COWAN: It is -- it is good for the 15 economy. 16 THE COURT: [inaudible] 17 MR. MCDONNEL: Exactly. But at some point we 18 have to dismantle that -- that machine. And when we do, 19 our ability to produce things rapidly, particularly 20 [inaudible] custodians or other kinds of issues, become 21 seriously hampered because most people scatter -- 22 THE COURT: [inaudible] 23 MR. COWAN: But let me cut to the chase. 24 THE COURT: [inaudible] 25 MR. COWAN: Understood. I'll cut to the

1 those, because those are the only ones I'm aware of that 2 we've agreed to. But I agree with Ms. Hann that we're 3 very close to this issue. Once they supplement their 4 initial disclosures, tell us what their damages are, we 5 will then quickly respond to what we think is 6 appropriate in the way of damage-document production. 7 So I think, unless there's anything else the 8 Court wants to hear on that, we can move to No. 5. 9 The No. 5, Your Honor, we put in -- I don't 10 think we have to have a lot of discussion on this. The 11 initial trigger for us was a concern that Oracle was 12 behind the eight-ball in some of its custodian 13 productions. I think since the exchange of the 14 discovery conference statement and a number of 15 communications since then, they've provided us with a 16 higher degree of comfort that they're going to get their 17 custodian productions done on time. 18 So this issue is really more one of what the 19 Court is thinking in terms of where the parties should 20 be at the end of the discovery period as of 12/4/09. 21 Our thought is -- Defendants' position is that 22 custodian production should be done. There may be 23 little ones-ies/twos-ies that both parties have agreed 24 in advance that will go past 12/4 -- deposition 25 discovery; the fact -- on the fact why it should be done	1 chase. The big issue is what does the Court anticipate 2 in terms of where the parties should be. That's my 3 aspect. 4 THE COURT: I think I've made my position very 5 clear. 6 MR. HOWARD: I hope you're going to say the 7 parties should be done on December 4th. That's our 8 intent. That's what we plan to -- that's where we plan 9 to be. 10 THE COURT: I think I've made it clear that I 11 think that unless that happens the whole rest of the 12 schedule is going to fall apart. So, yes, of course, if 13 you agree to a couple of minor loose ends, I'm not going 14 to overrule the agreement; and I wouldn't be surprised 15 by that. But, generally speaking, I would expect 16 99.99999 to be done. And if it's not done, it's 17 probably just too late. 18 MR. COWAN: That's -- that's our thought as 19 well. And what we thought we would come back to at the 20 next discovery conference is with that agreement, that 21 final agreement of saying this is the punch list, if you 22 will, of completion of fact discovery. 23 THE COURT: [inaudible] in other words, my 24 presumption is that there no other exceptions that I'm 25 going to grant. But if you grant yourself some very
